A Wreck on a Western Railroad.
The west-bound train on the St. Louis and San Francisco Railroad which is St. Louis Thursday night at 8:15 w. worked at a point three miles west of Sullivan, Mo., which place is sixty-eight miles west of St.
Louis. Not a passenger escaped unhurt, and forty-five are known to have been seriously injured, though no deaths yet are reported. The train was running at a high rate of speed when suddenly, without warning, the track gave way, and the locomotive, baggage car and five coaches went over the embankment. The train men and those only slightly injured at once set to work to prevent the additional horror of fire, in which they succeeded, and then turned their attention to the more unfortunate injured, and in a very short time forty-five passengers, all badly hurt, had been released from the debris. A temporary hospital was improvised at Sullivan, and the most seriously injured were taken there, while others were conveyed to St.
Louis on the relief train, which was hurried to the scene of the disaster. It was 11:25 p. m. when the accident occurred. The train was traveling at a high rate of speed, and most of the passengers had already gone to sleep, while the few remaining awake were about to do so. There is a curve in the road about three miles west of Sullivan, and when the train was reached a sudden jolt and jar was felt all over the train. Everybody felt it, and the people in the rear cars could hear the forward coaches rattling and rumbling over the ties and the crushing noise of cars being demolished. A creek is crossed by the road at that point and there is a steep embankment thirty feet high. Most of the passengers thought the train was going through a bridge, and a feeling of horror chilled their blood. In an instant all the coaches except the two sleeping cars had been thrown from the rails. People were thrown about in the cars in all directions and some of them were thrown from the coaches and down the embankment. One man was thrown right out of a window on the opposite side of the coach from which he was sitting and sent rolling down the embankment to the edge of the creek. His feet were in the water. Another passenger on the same coach was tossed from the rear end of the car to the forward end, and, in fact, men, women and children were thrown about promiscuously. The train proper was made up of a mail and express car, baggage car, a smoker, a ladies' car, a reclining chair car and two Pullman sleepers. Back of these sleepers were hitched five empty coaches of the San Antonio and Aransas Pass road, which had been picked up at some way station. The front truck of the first sleeper jumped the track, but the rest of the car remained on and the rear sleeper and empty coaches behind it never left the track. Fortunately, there were no fires in any of the cars, and the jolt extinguished the lights immediately. Otherwise a conflagration would have been caused, and there is no telling how many lives might have been lost. As it was, most of the forward cars were smashed into smithereens. The explanation given of it by the trainmen to the passengers was that the spikes and fish-plates had been removed from the rail at the curve, thus leaving the rail loose on the ties. The forward portion of the locomotive passed the place all right, but the tender jumped the track and was thrown part of the way down an embankment. Who removed the spikes and plates is not known, but the supposition is the work was done by train robbers who wanted to hold up the train. Still no robbers put in an appearance, and if the accident was caused by them, they must have either weakened in their purpose or have thrown the wrong train. The road officials claim it is a clear case of train-wrecking.
On the train was a large body of physicians returning from Springfield, where the State Medical Convention is being held, and they also rendered valuable assistance in caring for the injured.
